Nitric Oxide, Arginine and the Nobel Prize

When it comes to discoveries in health and science, it doesn't get any bigger than the Nobel Prize! Three scientists, Richard F. Furchgott, Louis J. Ignarro, and Ferid Murad were handed that prestigious award in 1998 for their discovery in medicine. What was their discovery? In part, that amino acids like L-Arginine are converted by the endothelium (inside of the arteries) into a molecule called nitric oxide.

To date, there have been thousands of clinical studies on arginine and nitric oxide. What does the research tell us? We need nitric oxide (and lots of it) to be healthy! As already mentioned, to make nitric oxide you need the natural amino acid L-Arginine. Your body makes some L-Arginine, but the rest you need to get from your diet.

Hundreds of physicians are recommending L-Arginine to their patients and stating that we should supplement our diet with at least 5000 milligrams per day.

In addition to 5000 mg of L-Arginine, CARDIO 5000 has other ingredients to enhance or support nitric oxide:

L-Citrulline – CARDIO 5000 has included only one other crucial amino acid to its blend: L-Citrulline. This vital nutrient has a "time release" effect on nitric oxide. Arginine converts into nitric oxide first, then citrulline converts into arginine, and then converts into nitric oxide. This way you get the benefits of nitric oxide longer and stronger!

Vitamins D3, C, E – Research has also shown that many health problems that are on the rise today are actually a result of low vitamin D levels. Doctors are indicating that as many as 90% of the American population could be vitamin D deficient. Also, vitamins C and E were proven to make arginine and citrulline work even better when taken together.

Pomegranate – Pomegranate not only tastes great, but has many phytonutrients and high levels of antioxidants. But the main reason we chose this powerhouse fruit? Nitric Oxide! Pomegranate has been shown to increase the synthesis of nitric oxide and helps it last longer in the body.

Trace Minerals – Trace minerals are naturally occurring plant-derived substances that act as transporters for the ingredients in CARDIO 5000. After all, we are not what we eat – we are what we ABSORB!
